

Let's hear from our youth...

We invite youth of the Diocese of San Jose to share their views on important topics in the pages of The Valley Catholic. Jim Pham, father of two and active in his parish of St. Francis of Assisi and in the local Vietnamese Catholic community, asked his children to write their beliefs for the Year of Faith, just ending. His daughter Bethany wrote on why she believes abortion is wrong. We'd like to hear from more young people. Submit articles to tvc.submissions@dsj.org. -- R. Ward

This I believe...abortion is wrong

By Bethany Pham, 12 years old

In this world, there are some children who are denied the right to live. They are innocent, unborn children. Some people, like me, do not approve of these actions. Abortion is murder -- killing an innocent child. This process doesn't limit our population. These unborn children are all human beings. This I believe, that every person has the right to live.

I believe that abortion is wrong, since it doesn't limit our population. The USA's population is growing, and even abortion cannot limit the population. If every woman on this planet commits abortion, there won't be any offspring to carry on the next generation. Therefore, we'll all die.

Some other opposing people will say that unborn children who have disabilities won't be accepted in life, and aborting them will make sure they won't be disrespected. This doesn't make sense. Even if an unborn child has disabilities, people should let that child live, for there will be people who will respect these children, regardless of their disabilities. Therefore, abortion is wrong; this I believe.

Second, I believe abortion is wrong because even if the child is unborn, it is considered a human being. Some people don't believe that an unborn child is human, or living. This is incorrect. When a woman finds out she is pregnant, she can hear the child's heartbeat. This indicates the preborn child is living, but still being processed. It is also considered "human" because it has human parents. A fetus is simply an unborn human being, forming in its mother's womb. Abortion is wrong; this I believe.

I believe abortion is wrong because it is murdering a person from the inside. According to the Ten Commandments, the Fifth Commandment states: "Thou shall not kill." This applies to everyone in this world, not only for Roman Catholics. The Fifth Commandment means not to take away life from any human being.

Abortion is one of the most common ways to kill others. A fetus is a human being forming in a mother's womb. Killing the fetus would cause the death of a human being. Therefore, abortion is wrong; this I believe.

Lastly, abortion doesn't have any advantages. It takes away a human's life. The population will grow, even if most people commit abortion. The fetus is an alive human being. Because of this, abortion is wrong; this I believe.

YOUNG ADULTS

THE VALLEY CATHOLIC

Let's hear from our youth...

We invite youth of the Diocese of San Jose to share their views on important topics in the pages of The Valley Catholic. Jim Pham, father of two and active in his parish of St. Francis of Assisi and in the local Vietnamese Catholic community, asked his children to write their beliefs for the Year of Faith, just ending. His daughter Bethany wrote on why she believes abortion is wrong. We'd like to hear from more young people. Submit articles to tvc.submissions@dsj.org. -- R. Ward

This I believe...abortion is wrong

By Bethany Pham, 12 years old

In this world, there are some children who are denied the right to live. They are innocent, unborn children. Some people, like me, do not approve of these actions. Abortion is murder -- killing an innocent child. This process doesn't limit our population. These unborn children are all human beings. This I believe, that every person has the right to live.

I believe that abortion is wrong, since it doesn't limit our population. The USA's population is growing, and even abortion cannot limit the population. If every woman on this planet commits abortion, there won't be any offspring to carry on the next generation. Therefore, we'll all die.

Some other opposing people will say that unborn children who have disabilities won't be accepted in life, and aborting them will make sure they won't be disrespected. This doesn't make sense. Even if an unborn child has disabilities, people should let that child live, for there will be people who will respect these children, regardless of their disabilities. Therefore, abortion is wrong; this I believe.

Second, I believe abortion is wrong because even if the child is unborn, it is considered a human being. Some people don't believe that an unborn child is human, or living. This is incorrect. When a woman finds out she is pregnant, she can hear the child's heartbeat. This indicates the preborn child is living, but still being processed. It is also considered "human" because it has human parents. A fetus is simply an unborn human being, forming in its mother's womb. Abortion is wrong; this I believe.

I believe abortion is wrong because it is murdering a person from the inside. According to the Ten Commandments, the Fifth Commandment states: "Thou shall not kill." This applies to everyone in this world, not only for Roman Catholics. The Fifth Commandment means not to take away life from any human being.

Abortion is one of the most common ways to kill others. A fetus is a human being forming in a mother's womb. Killing the fetus would cause the death of a human being. Therefore, abortion is wrong; this I believe.

Lastly, abortion doesn't have any advantages. It takes away a human's life. The population will grow, even if most people commit abortion. The fetus is an alive human being. Because of this, abortion is wrong; this I believe.

Catholic Cemeteries of the Diocese of San Jose would like to thank the following family owned and operated funeral homes:
Alameda Family Funeral & Cremation